

#304 The Image of the Beast – The Hall of Mirrors births the ‘Image of the Beast’ League of Nations

Mirror Image

Mirror – to mirror is to reflect, or form an image by reflection.

Image – an image is an exact likeness, a reproduction or imitation of a person or thing. One dictionary also says, to reflect, mirror.

Mirror Image – in fact, the two words mirror and image are often used together, as mirror image. One entity might be said to be a mirror image of another.

The League of Nations was birthed as part of the June 28, 1919, Treaty of Versailles, which officially ended World War I.

The Hall of Mirrors, which takes its name from the enormous mirrors decorating its walls, is the most famous part of the Palace of Versailles. When World War I came to an end, a peace treaty was signed by the Allied forces and Germany in France. The Hall of Mirrors in the Palace of Versailles was chosen as the venue for signing this historic document.

Key Understanding: The Lord ordained that the League of Nations be birthed at the signing of the Treaty of Versailles on June 28, 1919, in the Hall of Mirrors at the Palace of Versailles in France, to clarify and verify that the League of Nations was the Image of the Beast.
