

#2010 The Yom Kippur War and the Abomination of Desolation – The post-World War II U.S. waxing great toward the South and toward the East as a second Syria/Antiochus IV Epiphanes, part 269, Great Britain’s anti-Jewish role of November 9, 1938, (xiii), *Toward the Woodhead Commission’s report: 1920 - San Remo Conference

*Daniel 8:23 (NIV) “In THE LATTER PART OF THEIR REIGN, when rebels have become completely wicked, A [competing] STERN-FACED KING [represented by Adolf Hitler and Nazi Germany through the event of Kristallnacht, November 9-10-11, 1938, which can be considered a beginning to the Holocaust], a master of intrigue, will arise.

Key Understanding: Great Britain’s anti-Jewish role of November 9, 1938. On November 9, 1938, the date that Kristallnacht would erupt in Nazi Germany, instantly stimulating the desire in even more Jews to exodus en masse from Germany to the land of Palestine, the Woodhead Commission in Great Britain issued its report regarding the partition of Palestine between the Jews and Arabs, which would lead to the British policy of restricting Jewish emigration to Palestine.

1920 - San Remo Conference. We are going through Palestine history, spanning the subjects of 1900 - Zionism through 1938 - Woodhead Commission (immediately followed by 1939 - Great Britain restricting Jewish immigration). This Unsealing encompasses . . .

Palestine history: 1920 - San Remo Conference

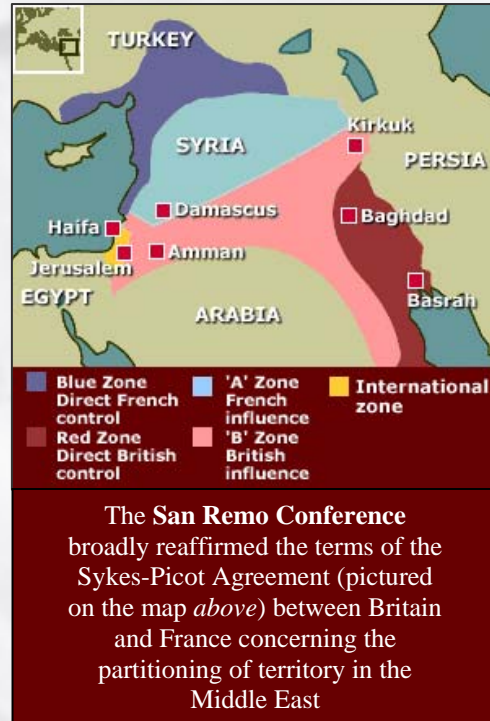

The San Remo Conference was an international meeting held in San Remo, Italy, from April 19-26, 1920. In it, the post-World War I Allied Supreme Council determined the allocation of Class “A” League of Nations mandates for administration of the former Ottoman-ruled lands of the Middle East by the victorious powers. The decisions of the conference mainly just confirmed (e.g., concerning Palestine) those of the First Conference of London (February 1920). Britain received the mandate for Palestine and Iraq, while France gained control of Syria, including present-day Lebanon. The boundaries of all these territories were left unspecified, to “be determined by the Principal Allied Powers” subsequently, and were in fact not completely finalized until four years later. To enforce its mandate, France subsequently intervened militarily at the Battle of Maysalun to depose the nationalist Arab government which King Faisal had meanwhile established in Damascus.

At the San Remo Conference, the Allies discussed the specifics of the partitioning of Anatolia and Thrace amongst themselves. The Ottoman Empire formally agreed to this partitioning in 1920, when it signed the Treaty of Sèvres (pictured on the map above).

The conference broadly reaffirmed the terms of the Anglo-French Sykes-Picot Agreement of May 16, 1916, for the region’s partition and the Balfour Declaration of November 2, 1917, under which the British government had undertaken to favour the establishment of a Jewish national home in Palestine without prejudice to the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country. The conference’s decisions were embodied in the stillborn Treaty of Sèvres (Section VII, Art 94-97). As embryonic Turkey (not to be confused with the Ottoman Empire), led by Mustafa Kemal Atatürk, rejected this treaty, the conference’s decisions were only finally confirmed by the Council of the League of Nations on July 24, 1922, and the 1924 Treaty of Lausanne.

<< Previous

Main Page and List of Unsealing Summaries

Next >>