The Woodhead Commission was sent to Palestine to recommend the best possible boundaries in the event of the partition of Palestine. The commission expressed reservations about the feasibility of partition per se. The boundaries drawn in Plan C were considered the best possible to meet the objectives of separating the Arab and Jewish communities.

Key Understanding: Great Britain's anti-Jewish role of November 9, 1938. On November 9, 1938, the date that Kristallnacht would erupt in Nazi Germany, instantly stimulating the desire in even more Jews to exodus en masse from Germany to the land of Palestine, the Woodhead Commission in Great Britain issued its report regarding the partition of Palestine between the Jews and Arabs, which would lead to the British policy of restricting Jewish emigration to Palestine.
